

Easter Triduum

Palm Sunday not only gives us palms to take home for the year, but it also kicks off Holy Week which is centered around the Easter Triduum. In short, "Triduum" means "three days," and it speaks to the highest celebration that the Church has. We celebrate Jesus' Paschal Mystery over the three days of, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The neat thing about Triduum is that it is one celebration spread out over three calendar days, from when we begin mass on Holy Thursday to the final blessing on the Easter Vigil is all one liturgy in the Church's mind.

Each of these days has a different focus or emphasis as well. When we begin on Holy Thursday, the mass focuses on Jesus establishing the priesthood and the Eucharist. These two things are intrinsically tied together. In past years this is also the day when the bishop would celebrate the Chrism mass where he would consecrate all the oils to be used in the diocese for that year. The priests also renew their promises that they made at ordination at this mass. Now Chrism mass is usually on a different day because of the immense distance that our diocese covers. So, for Holy Thursday, the focus is priesthood and the Eucharist.

Good Friday is the one day a year when priests are forbidden from praying the mass. The consecrated hosts that we distribute on this day are consecrated the day before. Some people have also probably noticed that between Thursday and Friday, there is no final blessing nor normal greeting. This is because we are picking up where Thursday left off. Friday is focused on Jesus' passion and death. We reverence the cross because it is the weapon of Jesus' victory over sin and death. We again leave in silence awaiting the resurrection.

Easter Vigil begins after dark to symbolize the darkness that Jesus has overcome. The light of the candles symbolizes to us that Christ has conquered the night and the darkness. He is risen from the dead and we rejoice in his victory. The focus of the Easter Vigil is demonstrating how God worked through history to prepare for Jesus' coming and his triumph in the resurrection.

This barely scratches the surface of what all is happening during these three days, so I invite you to dive deeper into the rich symbolism of Triduum. The more that we understand what is happening, the more that we can take in the rich symbolism that the Church gives us.
