Part of the Story

I think that most people have figured out that I come from a family of storytellers. I loved getting to hear all of the stories of the wild adventures that people have been a part of. I could not wait until I could be part of those stories. We love to tell our stories because we long to be a part of something great, and our stories make the twists and turns of life make sense.

We all have heard the story of salvation history, how God made Adam and Eve, and when they fell through disobedience, he worked to bring humanity back into communion with himself. It bespeaks of the figures like Abraham, Noah, Moses, and Jesus, who fulfills God's work of uniting man with God. I think that when we hear about the story of salvation, we think about it as an old story of the past, that involves people from long ago in a faraway land. The problem with thinking of the story of salvation in that way is we mistakenly think that it is complete. The story of salvation is not complete.

I think that one of the most devastating lies that our culture promotes is, "there is no story." It tells us this by saying, "you can do whatever you want, wherever you want, with whoever you want, whenever. You are free to do and act as you choose because we reject the idea that God made you a certain way which would imply that you should act a certain way." However, this lie is why our culture is so depressed, and trying to drown itself in the noise of media and pleasure because the foundation of that lie is your life DOES NOT MATTER. The lie says that you can do whatever you want because your life is absolutely unimportant, not of little importance, zero importance. That lie is devastating because it seeks to silence the craving in our hearts to be someone important, to be someone who matters because the God who formed us in our mother's womb made us essential to his story.

I wrote months ago that we are in the "Adventure of a Lifetime," and it is true. This adventure is so great because we are an essential part of God's plan of salvation. St Paul says, "Now I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh, I am filling up what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ on behalf of his body, which is the church. (Col 1:24)" Paul is not saying that Jesus' Paschal Mystery was imperfect, but the Church needs Paul's contribution to God's story of salvation because God's story of salvation is not finished. Jesus fulfills God's plan of salvation, and he perfectly unites humanity with God in his person. However, until Jesus returns at the end of time, the story of salvation is not finished because every person ever created has a role to play in God's story, as the new chapters are added year by year.

The humbling, exciting, and overwhelming generosity of God is not only do we have a part to play in God's story, but we have an essential part. The Father has given each one of us a role in his cosmic story, that he has given to no one else. We can choose to accept or reject this roll or call, but if we choose to reject it, then eternity will be poorer for it. Imagine what the Church would be lacking if St. Paul had rejected the grace of conversion, or if St. John Paul II would have been too afraid to follow God's call. It's only "Through Heaven's Eyes" that we can see the true value of our life, and at the second judgment we will see exactly how our life played a role in bringing more souls to God.

The story of salvation is not an ancient story that involved characters in an unrelatable time and place, it is the story of now. It is the story of how God created Adam and Eve out of love, and how we are given a role that no one else is. The story will not be finished until Jesus returns at the end of time; then we will get to see the full impact our yes or no contributed to God's story of salvation.
