Our earth is a creation of God. The book of Genesis explains the wonderful creation of our world. God's Spirit moving over the darkness and water brought forth the most beautiful gift imaginable to humanity. A home full of wonder and awe, a spectacular place... The people who have come together and are protesting the pipeline are in support of protecting the land and water... They are warriors in the front lines fighting for all people. But more importantly, they are fighting for the water and Mother Earth so that future generations will enjoy the same amenities that we enjoy.

Ordinary Time

November 13, 2016 ♦ Thirty-third Sunday in Ordinary Time (C)

Mal 3:19–20a ♦ 2 Thes 3:7–12 ♦ Lk 21:5–19

As we come to the close of the Church year, our readings turn more and more to the “end times.” These words are not easy to hear. Certainly, when we think about the persecution of Christians, the civil wars that seem far too frequent, and the number of people, nations, and even religious groups who claim to have the sole answer to everyone’s problems, we can find a striking resemblance to Jesus’ description of the coming days.

What our world is undergoing is not new. In every age people have been persecuted, wars have been fought, natural disasters have occurred, and many have claimed to be saviors. Jesus admits this openly and still tells us not to despair. He promises to walk with us and to give us the wisdom to speak even in the midst of great trouble. It’s tempting to follow the charismatic speakers and powerful leaders who claim to have the truth or single solution to our human limitations and vulnerabilities. Jesus urges us not to do that, but to look to him alone for what we need.

Our imperfect and passing world will always have places and times of great suffering and strife. Jesus doesn’t promise to take it all away; he promises to lead us through it. God will never abandon us and will provide more than a temporary fix. If we doubt that, we have only to look to Jesus’ death and resurrection to see that he was willing to take the worst the world had to offer in order to offer us the very best.

An ecclesiastical funeral gives proper honor to the body

My husband is buried in a public cemetery, which is not consecrated ground. Am I permitted to be buried next to him, and can the priest bless and consecrate our final resting place?

I commend your care in this matter. The Catechism stresses that “the bodies of the dead must be treated with respect and charity, in faith and hope of the Resurrection. The burial of the dead is a corporal work of mercy” (CCC 2300). However, it makes no reference to the place of burial—only the manner in which our bodies are treated after death (that is, conditions for autopsy, organ donation, and cremation).

Canon law “earnestly recommends that the pious custom of burying the bodies of the deceased be observed”; by doing so properly and receiving an ecclesiastical funeral, you honor your body, witness to our belief in the resurrection of the body, and bring “the solace of hope to the living” (Canon 1176). It later specifies that “where possible, the Church is to have its own cemeteries or at least areas in civil cemeteries that are designated for the deceased members of the faithful and properly blessed. If this cannot be achieved, however, then individual graves are to be properly blessed” (Canon 1240). Given this, it would seem that there is no objection to your being buried in the grave next to your husband or any difficulty in requesting that the priest bless your final resting place.

Come, Holy Spirit, refresh our souls when we are tired and discouraged. This world will one day pass away, and all of your children will live together in heaven forever. Brighten our hearts and send us human friendships that bring out the best in us. Give us companions full of your peace, joy, and kindness, so that we can learn from them and grow in holiness. Amen.
